The President,

Sept. 11, 1914.

Sir:-

Early in August we sent you our Official Call and blanks for the appointment of delegates to the International Irrigation Congress, to be held in Calgary, October 5 to 9 next, but on checking over our records we do not find that notice of appointment of delegates have been received from you.

Accordingly we are again calling this matter to your attention, and expressing the hope that because of the short time remaining until the meeting you will advise us promptly of your appointments. From the large number of delegates who have already been designated to represent their communities at this meeting, we cannot help but feel that there are in your community persons who would gladly accept appointments to the coming Irrigation Congress if they were to learn through the newspapers, or personally, of the opportunity to attend the meeting as delegates.

This great development organization does not confine its activities to irrigation alone, but also considers related interests such as forestry, good roads, drainage and deep waterways; in fact our general water resources which are of greatest importance to any country.

Colleges and universities are entitled to appointment of two delegates. If members of your staff are prevented from attending, it is possible that alumni of your institution are located in or near Calgary and would be pleased to represent you.

While appointment blanks were forwarded in our previous letter, mere notice from you of appointment is sufficient both for delegates and this office. We shall be pleased to furnish any information regarding program, rates or other matters; and ask for prompt advices as to the appointment of delegates.

Respectfully yours,

Arthur Hooker

Secretary.
